This class offers the students a general picture about global business related law and regulations. The laws and regulations included in class involve the whole business circle: from the birth of a business to legally operating your business, then, when your business is floundering, how to end it. Students are expected to have a good, but not necessarily sharp, legal sense, when certain deal is on table so that they may know the potential legal risk and evaluate the necessity of outsourcing. There is no casebook required for this course. Students are expected to read several pieces of scholarly works and legislation materials in due course. These readings can make attendants familiar with the subsequent contexts and terminologies.
